1869 – The Eastern Triumph of Empress Eugénie: The Twilight of an Empire
Her Visit to Constantinople and Egypt for the Inauguration of the Suez Canal

In a world teetering between imperial grandeur and looming transformation, one woman stepped into the spotlight of history's most audacious engineering feat. Empress Eugénie of France, draped in the splendor of the Second Empire, embarks on a dazzling diplomatic journey to Constantinople and Egypt—her presence at the inauguration of the Suez Canal marking not just a triumph of technology, but a symbolic assertion of fading imperial power
